IT Implementation during New or Additional Hospital Construction If you build it, they will come...

The United States is in the "middle of the biggest hospital-construction boom" in more than 50 years. The hospital industry has spent almost $100 billion in inflation-adjusted dollars in the past five years on new facilities, a 47% increase from the previous five years, with spending likely to reach a record $23.7 billion in 2005, according to the Census Bureau. According to USA Today, the "money is being spent on more luxurious buildings packed with advanced equipment," with a focus on profitable treatments, such as heart surgery and neonatal care, that are reimbursed at higher rates by private health insurers and Medicare. In addition, hospitals have begun to move from inner cities to the suburbs, a trend that "threatens to reduce medical care for the poor," USA Today reports. (USA Today, 1/3/06)
